TAKING STOCK:

Oooooh, a Salesa statement !

And from the man himself, rather than of his poor victims.

He sounds surprisingly decent ? I was expecting more of a bastard to be honest, but he was an ok boss, I guess ? Though letting his crew eat human meat when you could've stopped it is fucked up, man.

Of course, that one was a Flesh artefact. God, I wonder where they even come from. Gotta agree with Jon here, I am pretty sure that this entire story is just a veiled attempt to make everyone vegetarian.

Jon is antsy, and god do I get him, we're almost getting there after all. Sometimes, i just wish the statements weren't even there or apart of the episode, I am just so eager for more story to happen.

The Helen situation hurt me though. Of course, i get where Jon is coming from, and God knows I wouldn't trust Helen ever, but. Seeing her somewhat struggle with her newfound monsterhood is painful to watch, you know ?

I don't think she could be "saved", or put on a straight path. She isn't human anymore, and it's not even like the avatars, she just got overtaken by The Spiral, but she didn't seek to be. Helen just wanted to escape, but instead, she trapped herself forever in a state that will chip away at her humanity until nothing but the fear and madness are left.

But still, having an ear to listen to her might have helped make the transition less painful, somehow. Of course, it wasn't something Jon was willing to give, too afraid of his own changes to bear see them reflected in Helen.

I think they could've been pretty ok, together. Somehow, anyway.

THE SHOW MUST GO ON :

“They dragged a thing that wasn’t a thing, but instead a mouth upon a tree that hated the Turk and all it brought upon the world.”

On today’s episode of “The Institute is A Death Trap”, the shady and manipulative boss is shady and manipulative, as well as gleefully sending everyone to their probably doom !

How fun.

Except for Martin. That I’m still unsure on whether or not is going to die. Surely Elias wouldn’t go for two in one season, right ? One dead assistant archivist is enough per season, I say.

Although ... Season 2 didn’t have an archival assistant dying, did it ? Anyway, pretty sure at this point that Martin is just assurance, a back up in case Jon dies doing this.

Loved the statement though. It had a certain kind of whimsy I quite enjoyed, never getting anything ever.

TESTAMENT :

Timothy Stoker :

Search
“I’m gonna hurt them, though. I’m gonna hurt the thing that stole my brother and wrecked my life.”

... Yep.

It's confirmed, Tim is the one dying this season.

This is ...Great. Just absolutely wonderful, really. We just can't have nice things, ever, can we ?

... Rest in Peace, Tim. You were entertaining while you lasted, you beautiful suicidal bastard.

He has been a bit frustrating, but never in a way that I couldn't understand. How his character hurt, how he evolved, all of that made sense and fit him. I liked the sarcasm, this guy definitely dethroned Jon as the reigning sass king, in my mind !

I'll miss him.

I hope that his last moments will be the kind to make him proud.

MARTIN BLACKWOOD :

“Like nothing can go back to normal after this.”

Honestly, I still don't care much for Martin, but I'd be lying if he didn't pull at my heartsstrings from time to time.

This one being one of them.

He is so easily pushed to the side, overlooked. Never the priority to anyone, and always giving pieces of himself to help others, but never appreciated.

Honestly, if not for The Web “connections” to him, I'd almost imagine him <sup>Search</sup> someone marked by The Lonely, you know ?

He isn't that interesting to me, but he is a damn cutie and I will protect him however I can ! Please Jon, notice the pining baby whenever this fucking mess of over and done with, you know he has feelings for you.

I think Martin would treat Jon pretty well !

That being said, I can't wait to see what Martin's trap will be.

MELANIE KING :

“When did I start to lose the parts of me that weren’t just anger?”

Melanie is ... Complicated. I love my girl. She’s kind of a bitch, but you know ? After all the bullshit she went through, she deserves to go apeshit !

Would be nice if she didn’t board the Stoker Train destination Blame Jontown, but it is fair and I get it. Her life have been kind of hell, recently. I mean, everyone’s is, but I feel for her.

She’s resiliant though, and I can admire that.

She should probably check with someone for those anger management issues though.

BASIRA HUSSAIN AND DAISY :

“I think sometimes you feel like you’re adapting, but it’s just denial.”

Man, Basira is cool. She’s great, a grounding force in the midst of all this chaos and pain and anger. I get why Daisy is so focused on her.

Why they both are so fixed on each other.

Frankly, it is difficult to speak of one without speaking of the other, because they are so connected. I can’t imagine one living without the other without absolutely falling apart, somehow.

Daisy in a murderous rage, obviously, but you get me.

JONATHAN SIMS :

“That same petty little part of me rather hopes it doesn’t.”

God, he is so tired. And he is trying so hard to understand the others, to trust them, even if it isn’t even possible for him at this point, he makes the choice to do anyway, and I just.

God, he hurts me in the best of ways. Focus on yourself baby, take a break after all this, please.

With Martin, maybe ?

After all, he did listen to the same tapes as we did. Wonder how surprised he was over the “gossip”. Can’t imagine he didn’t know already, the guy hasn’t exactly been subtle, nor has anyone around him, but it’s ok. Martin is cute enough that we forgive him.

It’s funny, I am trying to make a section entirely about Jon, but I still can’t not mention others, because even his own part of the episode was him focusing on them, rather than himself, at least not for long.

I guess it makes sense. Just like The Eye, he is always watching. An Eye hardly can watch itself.

The quote of the post will be :

“I am here, and I give you my words. They are all I have, and all you want, and perhaps when I am free of them then I will be allowed to sleep.”

End Liveblogging.
